THESIS

People from thousands of years ago and people from today all have one major thing in common, the wondering of what our universe is as a whole. As time goes on humans have gotten further and further into discovering and visiting our planetary and galactic neighbors. However, modern day and future space travel couldn't have been achieved without events from the past such as; inventions of the first telescope, first in-space telescopes, and especially the moon landing, without these ideas

THESIS

Throughout World War II, from years 1939-1945, the introduction of canine troops within the United States was founded. Marine Corps organization, "Dogs For Defense," created subsequently to the bombing of Pearl Harbor, helped the U.S with this innovation. Despite other countries previously engaging in this technique, the U.S did not officially participate until 1942. Spanning as far back as ancient times, specifically Greek and Roman people(s), many other countries utilized the abilities of dogs' outstanding sense of smell and past nature of hunting,
