Director's Notes

When Midsummer/Jersey was announced, you might initially have thought, "What the Puck?" It reminds me of an old joke: What's the scariest word in the English language? Shakespeare!

Though the mystical is woven throughout both his words and this play, it is Shakespeare's universal themes that spoke to his audiences then and remain relevant to us today. The melding of Shakespeare's words with the pop icons of Jersey Shore brings us a humorous romp on the beach, where we will bear witness to the chaos of romance, the age-old struggle of illusion versus truth, and the ways in which man can be manipulated by the supernatural.

Will our lovers, both human and otherwise, find their way to happiness, or will petty problems lead to the demise of each relationship?

Helene states, "I hate mirrors. They never lie to you." Shakespeare holds a mirror up to society and forces us to take a long, hard look at ourselves—how we treat ourselves and, perhaps more importantly, how we treat one another.

As we watch our couples navigate the twists and turns of love, ask yourself: What would I have done?

Enjoy the show!
